ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

First and foremost, many thanks to the educators whose stories inspired this book. Thank you for taking the time to share your experiences with me. I trust that your contributions will help create psychologically safe schools.

Writing is a challenging, laborious, and transformative process for me. I could not have written this book without the support and encouragement of my family and my dear friends, especially my mom, Beth, Faith, Jesse, Zach, Nick, Richard, Ernie, Doreen, Dan, Jamil, and Gabriel. I am thankful for your love.

Last, thank you Jessica Allan, my editor, and the wonderful publishing team at Corwin. Your guidance and patience helped me conquer my inner critic and get words on the page.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Ricky Robertson is an educator, author, and consultant. He has had the privilege to work with students from pre-K to 12th grade who have persevered in the face of adversity and trauma. He began his career in education as a New York City public high school teacher, teaching in one of the city's highest-performing public schools. He then went on to work as a teacher, behavior specialist, and, eventually, as an administrator in traditional and alternative schools supporting students with significant mental health and behavioral needs.

Ricky is the coauthor, along with Victoria Romero and Amber Warner, of the Corwin best-selling book Building Resilience in Students Impacted by Adverse Childhood Experiences: A Whole Staff Approach. The model that he and his coauthors developed in their book was included in the Roadmap for Resilience: The California Surgeon General's Report on Adverse Childhood Experiences, Toxic Stress, & Health as an example of best practices for schools to support children and families affected by toxic stress and trauma. Robertson continues to work with state and federal policymakers as an adviser on trauma-informed care in public health and education policy.

As a consultant and coach, Robertson works with schools, school districts, education service districts, and state departments of education across the country to develop systems of support that foster achievement, well-being, and resilience among staff and students. His work has been featured in podcasts, online media, books, magazines, national conferences, as well as a trauma-informed teaching video series developed by the National Education Association, WETA, and AdLit.

Ricky finds inspiration in the resilience of young people and the heart and hard work of educators.
